CONFERENCE THEME

Gender equality between men and women, entails the concept that all human beings, both men and women, are free to develop their personal abilities and make choices without the limitations set by stereotypes, rigid gender roles and prejudices. It is directed towards the fairness of treatment for women and men, according to their respective needs. This may include equal treatment or indifferent treatment but which is considered equivalent in terms of rights, benefits, obligations and opportunities. At the global scale, achieving gender equality also requires eliminating harmful practices against women and girls, including sex trafficking, femicide, wartime sexual violence, and other oppression tactics. As Gender Equality is needed for women and girls so, the need has been felt of the protection of Child rights too in society because both women and children are being categorized as the children of lesser god who have been deprived of their rights. Exploitation and unequal treatment of women lead towards the exploitation of children also. Hence bringing in the issues of Gender equality and protection of child Rights is a long felt need of the contemporary society. Endeavored efforts by people from across the world have been made for social and political justice have paved their efforts to burning issues – gender equality and child rights.

UNICEF plays an important role in bringing efforts towards Gender equality and it is said to be the fifth of seventeen sustainable development goals of the United Nations too. To eradicate the problems of these issues government as well as social welfare societies of each nation have made certain laws and trying to implement the laws respectively. Although execution of conventions and its effect on child well-being varied from country to country from one region of the world to the other but the purpose of the rights is that they represent a commitment to improve the situation of children and fair sex. We need to take into account the issues like child labour and cognitive growth, cyber-crime, casteism and social trends, role of UNICEF, balanced society based on gender equality and role of biased families for gender discrimination, RTE and child marriage. It is required to grasp the contrasts and consequences of various policies within the context of child rights and gender equality. The important factor for shaping the future of a nation is when childhood can be endowed with the minimum requisite for healthy growth and development. The present conference 'Strengthening Society through Gender Equality and Protection of Child Rights' is an effort to bring together participants and presenters that will grapple, discuss and explore the process of policy execution in order to get a sustainable solution during the two days conference. "All persons should be educated, so we could have peace in the world." – John Amos
